BLUE-LIGHT services at The Whittington Hospital have been earmarked for closure in four out of seven new options for a rejig of hospital services across north London.

Sparking fresh fears that lives could be put at risk, accident and emergency services at the treasured Highgate Hill hospital could be scaled back to just 16 hours per day or scrapped entirely under new proposals currently being considered by NHS bosses. The Whittington's 50-bed maternity unit is also at risk under all seven options and maternity services at North Middlesex Hospital in Edmonton – the destination of choice for many of Haringey's mums-to-be – could also fall under the axe.

Though three of the options retain The Whittington's A&E, there are fears services may be pared down with staff ultimately focusing more on planned care, such as outpatient appointments and day surgery, rather than emergency treatment.

Although health chiefs have yet to finalise the options and say changes are as much about patient choice as cost-cutting, this latest turn of events has rocked local residents and campaigners who fear Haringey will lose out yet again.

Sue Hessel, of Haringey Federation Of Residents' Associations, said: "Six working hospitals in Haringey have been sold off one by one since the 1980s – we can't afford to lose the next hospital on our boundary, unless they want us all to die. People should be very careful before they believe anything they are told given the history of health in this borough. We absolutely have to protect what we've already got.

"At the moment, The Whittington has a good name in teaching with juniors learning a lot in the A&E and getting a range of experience. The minute you take that away, people won't be interested in going there and you start to lose the best staff. If I worked at The Whittington I would be looking for another job right now. These health bosses have done enormous damage already – we've only shone the torch of truth on what is happening and enough is enough."

Ms Hessel also scoffed at the idea of a 16-hour A&E, saying: "People don't only have illnesses and accidents for 16 hours of the day.

"What happens to a seriously ill child or a person in acute pain? It's preposterous. They have

Councillor to go solo after deselection by Labour

By Lucy Purdy

TOTTENHAM HALE councillor Sheik Thompson, a former mayor of Haringey, has announced he will stand as an independent candidate in this year's local elections following his deselection by the Labour party after four years.

Councillor Thompson said being independent would give him the power to continue representing residents in his ward including underprivileged groups such as young people and the elderly.

Councillor Thompson, who was mayor of Haringey between 2007/8, said personal integrity and the best interests of residents had forced him to make his decision after months of dilemma – and was not down to his deselection at the end of last year.

In an open letter sent last week to council and Haringey Labour party leader Claire Kober, he said: "There is no easy option or opportunism in my bones. I live in Tottenham Hale ward and will continue to represent the multitude of all those people who live in my ward and need proper representation from their elected councillors."

He added: "I had struggled long and hard over many years to democratically represent all the people's interests and concerns in my neighbourhood and community within this New Labour Party's present policy.

"The behaviour has not been supportive, nor fair to all the people who make up our community which is thankfully diverse and quite vibrant even so, in spite of the difficult attitude and decisions colleagues have taken towards many of them during this administration."

Councillor Joe Goldberg, Labour chief whip, said: "Councillor Thompson was not selected as a Labour Party candidate for Tottenham Hale. This was a democratic decision taken by local party members living in the ward. Democratic processes often produce results that are not to the liking of everyone."

"We are the only party to maintain this level of democracy for council candidate selections and I believe it keeps us closer to communities we seek to serve."

Independent: Sheik Thompson is to go it alone

His decision has narrowed Labour's leading grip on the borough to just one seat as it comes in the wake of several other high profile departures.

The move comes after the defection of cabinet member Councillor Brian Haley last month to the Liberal Democrats and Councillor Alan Dobbie's move to join the Conservatives last year.

The make-up of Haringey Council is now 29 Labour, 26 Lib Dem, one Conservative and one Independent.

Firefighters pull 22 from building fire

FIREFIGHTERS rescued 22 people from a burning building in Green Lanes in Harringay on Saturday night.

Eight people managed to escape from flats above a shop before crews arrived to help a further 14 people down ladders. Seven adults and one child suffered from smoke inhalation and were treated by London Ambulance Service crews before being taken to hospital.

Part of the ground floor of the building was damaged by the blaze and the staircase from the ground floor to the second floor was completely destroyed. Firefighters were called at 10.52pm and took about an hour to bring the fire under control.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. The busy road next to Harringay Ladder was closed during the incident.

Rapid recovery?

Although the latest figures indicate that the UK is emerging from recession, the transition into fully-fledged recovery could be a way off for many businesses.

This will ring true for small businesses in particular, many of whom have been hit hardest by the economic downturn with redundancies, shrinking profits and cash-flow management issues all too familiar.

However, despite the setbacks, small to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) should continue to be proactive during this time and ensure financial management remains top priority. This will not only put them in prime position to capitalise on the upturn when they are ready to embrace it, but having efficient financial processes in place will also allow SMEs to identify business issues at their very earliest stages.

A recent poll conducted by Business Link in London showed 45 per cent of the capital's SMEs do not have efficient systems to chase unpaid invoices, and 46 percent are unaware of what their break-even point is - clearly demonstrating the need for robust and accessible support to stop such companies going into financial meltdown.

SMEs are imperative to London's business strength. The capital now has the largest number of small businesses of any region in the country and the sector's £387bn annual contribution to the London economy is crucial*. Business Link in London is here to help London's entrepreneurs make their business a success

Spotting the signs

If detected early enough, financial issues can be rectified and damage to businesses can be limited or even averted. But at the other end of the spectrum, delaying the appropriate action can lead to business closure.

The challenge many SMEs face is firstly being able to recognise the signs that their business is under real threat and secondly knowing where to turn for the right level of help. This can be exacerbated by the reluctance of employers to seek such help in the first place, often driven by fear and embarrassment to admit that their business may be in trouble.

So, to tackle these issues and support the capital's small business community, Business Link in London has launched a free, impartial and specialist service for companies who urgently need help to survive.

Taking rapid action

The Rapid Response service works to help small to medium-sized business owners in London who are looking for help to avoid business closure, need guidance on taking financial control during these economically-tough times or who face potential changes to their staffing levels due to financial constraints.

Rapid Response is delivered through a team of expert advisers who can offer guidance over the phone or face to face.

Support is offered on a '121' basis where advisers come out to visit SME's at their place of business to discuss the issues and explore the possible solutions. Businesses can also contact the Business Link in London contact centre where advisers can point them in the direction of the appropriate next steps, whether that's arranging a business review, 121 appointments or booking workshop attendance.

Rapid Response workshops allow employers to take away practical steps to improve their business situation at one day sessions hosted free of charge in central London. An upcoming workshop on finance entitled 'Finance: risks, recognition, reaction' will give attendees vital tips to help them identify financial threats to their business before they take hold and equip them with the knowledge to react to these challenges quickly. Sessions are hosted by experienced advisers.

Growing businesses

Although Rapid Response is geared at helping businesses survive financial difficulty, it can also help SMEs to grow by providing advice on topics such as implementing marketing programmes and improving sales techniques.

The service also helps to get new ventures off the ground by supporting those who may be considering starting their own business as a result of redundancy. A dedicated series of workshops entitled 'Becoming Your Own Boss' have been designed to help individuals assess whether their business plan is sound, introduce them to the challenges of running a business and identify who their potential customer base may be.

Get help

Stephen Walker is an adviser at Business Link in London, "Recovery is going to be the word on everyone's lips this year but the damage caused by the recession has left a long-lasting legacy that cannot necessarily be shaken off easily. Many of London's SMEs have been hit hard and need advice to help them manage their finances and get back on track one step at a time."

He continues, "We want business owners to know there's absolutely nothing wrong with asking for help and Rapid Response has been designed to be as accessible as possible to encourage them to come forward. Our goal is to save those businesses in real danger of closure and help get London's SME community thriving again."

'Six hospitals in Haringey have been sold off – we can't afford to lose the next hospital on our boundary unless they want us all to die'

to look for cuts among their own bureaucrats who have been lavished with large salaries."

The North Central London Service And Organisation Review first came to light in November in a leaked letter penned by Rachel Tyndall, its chief executive, which suggested there would be no more than three major acute hospitals in the region which stretches from Euston to Hertfordshire. In this letter she stated the ideal would be only two, but in the latest seven options the "do-minimum" option is the only one which retains three fully fledged general hospitals.

Plans are also in the pipeline for a cost-cutting merger between The Whittington and the Royal Free Hospital in Hampstead, leaving the future of healthcare in the region up in the air.

Hornsey and Wood Green MP Lynne Featherstone, who is backing a major campaign by the Defend The Whittington Coalition, reminded residents to add their voice to the "fight to end all fights". She said: "I was dismayed to see that four options may get rid of The Whittington's A&E."

"There are so many unanswered questions at the moment: what consultation will there be? Will it be the people who actually use the hospital who decide this? I think local people are only interested in a full, 24-hour A&E. If we don't keep that, it will be the thin end of the wedge."

"We can feasibly travel to the Royal Free to have planned liver treatment for example, but we need local access to the things that matter hugely – A&E and maternity. We have to keep up the pressure."

Ms Featherstone also pointed to the two 16-hour A&E options, saying The Whittington's Council Of Governors had already rejected such a plan at a board meeting. This makes me wonder whether options have been put in that are not really and truly under consideration, but are there to make two of the options look better than they are. I come to wonder this because they seem to offer some A&E rather than none."

Haringey Council leader Claire Kober added: "We are absolutely committed to fighting for services to stay at The Whittington and North Middlesex. The people of this borough have said very clearly that they do not want to travel even further for treatment, and we will make sure that NHS managers listen to our views."

But health leaders charged with ushering in the shake-up of services have pledged no changes will take place until a full consultation process in which patients and residents get the chance to air their views. They have also promised nothing will be implemented until there is proof ambulance and local hospital services can accommodate them.

A report released this week by the National Audit Office finds hundreds of people who suffer serious injuries are dying due to poor care and that trauma services have barely improved over the past 20 years. Its authors commended trauma plans currently under way in London with major centres at the Royal London Hospital and three others where people will be treated after road accidents, falls and burns.

A demonstration against the proposals will take place on February 27,

Five years' jail for armed raid

By Shajan Miah

AN ARMED robber who terrorised staff and customers during the attempted robbery of a travel agency in Muswell Hill will spend at least five years behind bars.

Staff were threatened with a gun and left fearing for their lives during the attempted robbery at Thomas Cook in Muswell Hill Broadway on November 16 last year. Michael Michaelides, 42, of Cardinals Way, Islington, forced his way into the foreign exchange bureau at the branch and began to stuff cash into a carrier bag.

A staff member managed to raise the alarm by alerting shoppers in a nearby store who contacted the police. Officers arrived on the scene while Michaelides was stashing his loot and they arrested him inside the shop.

Investigating officer Detective Constable Adrian White-wick said: "This was a very serious robbery where staff members carrying out their daily business were threatened by an armed gunman."

"The actions of both the staff and members of the public were crucial in assisting officers to arrest Michaelides and recover the firearm and stolen cash." Michaelides pleaded guilty to attempted robbery and possession of a firearm with intent to commit an indictable offence at Wood Green Crown Court on January 13 and was given a minimum term of five years'.

Jail: Michael Michaelides

Four wanted for ATM ram-raid theft

A BRAZEN gang ram-raided a shop in Tottenham and sped off after loading a cash machine on to their van.

Detectives are trying to track down four men who burgled the mini-market in Church Road at about 3.20am last Monday.

They used a white Suzuki Rascal van to repeatedly ram the shop's shutters before getting inside and taking the machine. Three of the suspects fled in the van with the tailgate open and a fourth man is believed to have run off in the direction of King Street.

Investigating officers are keen to hear from anyone who may have seen the van between Church Road and where it was later found abandoned in Hartham Road. A spokesman said the van would have been "quite noticeable" with the tailgate open, and that it mounted the pavement and drove the wrong way down a one-way street.

Police are looking for four slim men.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Detective Constable Craig Carter of Haringey CID on 020 8345 0886.

PETA ad banned for using Baby P 'shock tactics'

By Lucy Purdy

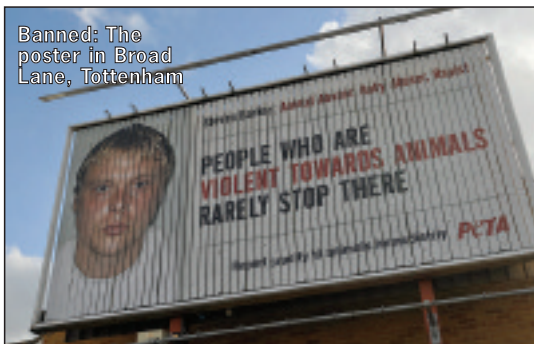

A POSTER campaign featuring Baby Peter Connelly's evil step-father has been banned by the Advertising Standards Agency.

The poster, by People For The Ethical Treatment Of Animals, featured a picture of 33-year-old Steven Barker and a slogan suggesting those who abuse animals go on to harm children. It appeared on a billboard in Broad Lane, Tottenham, just over a mile from the house in Penshurst Road where 17-month-old Peter Connelly died at the hands of Barker and the his mother, Tracey Connelly.

It was revealed in court that Barker had enjoyed torturing guinea pigs as a child and skinned frogs before breaking their legs.

The watchdog ruled that the advert was "shocking and intrinsically frightening" and likely to be particularly offensive and distressing to residents living near where Baby Peter died.

Banned: The poster in Broad Lane, Tottenham

The ruling read: "Advertisers who wish to refer to current or emotive news stories in their marketing should take particular care over how such stories are used, in order to avoid accusations of exploitation or shock tactics. They should not cause fear or distress without good reason."

The poster had read: "Steven Barker: Animal abuser, baby abuser, rapist. People who are violent towards animals rarely stop there. Report cruelty to animals immediately".

Barker's lawyers had claimed the poster was libellous as it previously described him as a killer. He was jailed last May for "causing or allowing" the toddler's death but cleared of murder.

Peter Connelly suffered many months of horrific torture and abuse, which resulted in 50 separate injuries, including a fractured spine.

LOVE FOOD hate waste

A few simple changes to the way we shop, cook and eat can make a BIG difference to our wallets!

Every year in the UK we throw away £12 billion worth of good food.

Whether we are cooking too much, letting food go past its best as we don't know how to store it, or are unsure of what the date labels mean, throwing away the odd bit of food is easily done. But little by little all this waste really adds up, over a year the average family throws away £680 of food shopping – equivalent to an annual utility bill. That's a lot of food!

Wasted food isn't just a waste of money it has a big impact on climate change too. Most of it ends up in landfill sites where it rots and releases methane, a damaging green house gas. Throwing away food is also a huge waste of the energy, water and packaging used in its production, transportation and storage. If we all stopped wasting the food which could have been eaten, it would have the same CO2 impact as taking 1 in 4 cars off UK roads.

The good news is that lovefoodhatewaste.com has lots of helpful, quick and easy tips to help us make the most of the food we buy. Here are a few of our favourites...

SAVE TIME AND MONEY

– a great way of saving time and money is to know what's in our cupboards, fridges and freezers and decide what meals to cook before we go shopping. It means we don't have the hassle of thinking about what to cook every day and ensures we eat our food at its freshest – try using the menu planner at lovefoodhatewaste.com

Did you know that half of us regularly make a shopping list but half then don't stick to it in store!

FREEZE FOR LATER

– divide large packs of meat and fish, and loaves of bread into portions and freeze until needed. Toast the bread straight from frozen for breakfast on the run.

There's not much that can't be frozen including hard cheese; simply grate before freezing and use on dishes such as pasta bakes. Tomatoes; just freeze whole any soft ones, then use straight from the freezer to make tasty pasta sauces. Cream; just whip it first.

PERFECT PORTIONS

– at some time or other, we've all ended up cooking that bit too much for dinner. It's easily done, especially with rice and pasta. Try using a spaghetti measurer, or for shaped pasta two handfuls per adult. For rice a mug is just the thing, ½ a mug will feed two adults. Try the portion calculator on lovefoodhatewaste.com

DOUBLE UP ON FAMILY FAVOURITES

– when you're cooking dishes such as bolognese, chilli, soups and casseroles, cook one for now and freeze one for later. That way will have a meal readymade on busy nights when there is no time to cook.

KEEP AN EYE ON DATES

– a lot of food is wasted because it is left to go past its 'use by' date. You can eat or freeze food right up to the end of its 'use by' date. 'Best before' dates refer to quality rather than food safety, foods should be safe to eat after this date, but may no longer be at their best. One exception is eggs; never eat eggs after the 'best before' date. You can ignore 'display until' and 'sell by' dates as they are for shop staff not for shoppers.

THERE REALLY IS SUCH A THING AS A FREE LUNCH

– simply by using the food that we already have in the fridge, or by taking last night's leftovers to work for lunch, we could save between £3 and £5 a day.

Much-loved walking route set for a £175,000 upgrade to improve access

On track for improvement: The Parkland Walk follows the route of a disused steam-railway line

ADAM HOLT

A CHERISHED green space in Haringey will get a £175,000 cash injection to encourage more people to use it.

Parkland Walk is a disused steam-rail line which stretches four-and-a-half miles between Finsbury Park and Alexandra Palace. Work will take place from Monday until the end of March, including improvements to the main paths, drainage systems and installing better signs and pushchair-access. It is the longest nature reserve in London and is home to hundreds of species of wildflower, fig trees, hedgehogs and foxes.

Councillor Dhiren Basu, cabinet member for leisure, culture and lifelong learning, said: "Parkland Walk is a major attraction for walkers and cyclists in the borough. This will mean that it can be used by more people, especially young families and people in wheelchairs."

Music fans planning new anti-racist festival after Rise axed by mayor Boris

By Michael Carroll

A PAIR of music fans from Finsbury Park are hoping to bring an anti-racism festival back to the borough after the original Rise was axed by Boris Johnson.

The Uprise festival will place in July on the park if the organisers get the green light from Islington Council and manage to drum up enough cash. It has been estimated by organisers that at its peak the Rise Festival brought together 100,000 people, including school and community groups to enjoy performances by urban music icons such as Public Enemy, De La Soul, Run DMC, Asian Dub Foundation and The Fun Lovin' Criminals. But the London mayor scrapped it because organisers refused to tone down the politics behind the event.

Festival organiser Bieneosa Ebite said: "Once he won the mayor's seat, Boris Johnson insisted on removing the key anti-racism message of the festival in 2008 before declaring that insufficient funding was available for us to continue.

"I think his reasoning was confused and short-sighted. Fostering social cohesion is vital while far-right groups such as the BNP are receiving more media coverage all the time. We need this type of event now more than ever. Uprise is non-political along party lines. We have the support of MPs such as Lib Dem MP Lynne Featherstone and Labour MP David Lammy."

The festival is currently supported by original headline act Asian Dub Foundation and UK hip-hop legends Roots Manuva, as well as other celebrated artists such as Ty, Beadyman, Ashley Beedle, Dub Pistols and Urban Nerds.

Co-organiser Mike Barnard said: "We've got the people and the expertise, all we need now is for sponsors to come forward so we can ensure we hold the event at its home in Finsbury Park, which is what we as organisers as well as all our supporters in the local community really want.

"There's no other event like it in London and such a cosmopolitan city should be celebrating its diverse heritage."

The Rise Festival was an annual event founded in 1996 and was known throughout the UK and Europe for its inclusive message.

Those wishing to support the Uprise Festival can do so via the organiser's website www.uprise.org.uk

No trace: Gelsimo Ronchetti

Search call for missing OAP

By Michael Carroll

FEARS are growing for a missing pensioner who was last seen saying goodbye to his wife at his Fortis Green home last Wednesday.

Gelsimo Ronchetti's disappearance has been reported as being out of character as he has never gone missing before. The 78-year-old has a Freedom Pass but he has no bank cards or mobile phone and it is not known whether he has any money.

Mr Ronchetti has a strong Italian accent, is 5ft 8in tall, of medium build with brown eyes. He was wearing brown corduroy trousers, a half-length brown jacket and tan shoes when he was last seen by his wife at home in Fortis Green Avenue at about 9.30am on February 3.

Police have searched allotments in Trott Road, Muswell Hill, where Mr Ronchetti has a plot, but no trace of him was found.

He is known to frequent the Wood Green, Edmonton and Clerkenwell areas. It is thought that he may have travelled to any of these areas by public transport but it has been stressed he could gone anywhere in London.

Concerns are growing for Mr Ronchetti's welfare as he has been missing for a week. Police have appealed for anyone with any information about his whereabouts to contact Haringey Police 24-hour non-emergency number on 0300 123 1212 quoting reference CAD5742/03FEB.

Self-defence class helps women feel more secure

By Lucy Purdy

WOMEN have taken part in personal safety classes in Haringey designed to boost their esteem and learn how to deal with attackers.

The classes, held throughout January at the Kurdish Community Centre in Portland Gardens, were organised after women told police they were wary about using public transport in the area and walking home alone. Nearly 20 women aged between 13 and 46 took part in the sessions, which were taught by qualified instructor Sev Necati.

Sergeant Tim Hannah of St Ann's Safer Neighbourhood team said: "We were able to employ the services of an excellent instructor. The general feedback has gone to show that these classes are a great way to learn how to stay safe in your local neighbourhood, as well as promoting personal health."

Further courses are now set to take place with places on a first-come-first-served basis.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, Haringey Council's cabinet member for enforcement and community safety, welcomed the idea. She said: "This is a really valuable initiative to help women feel safe.

"Fear of crime can have a real impact on people's lives. These classes aim to give residents greater confidence as well as teaching them how to look after themselves if they are confronted."

One participant said: "It was excellent. We had a wonderful teacher and the two police-women were superb and extremely helpful with advice.

Defence tactics: Nilgun Canver takes part in the class

I'll certainly mention these classes to neighbours to see if any women are interested as it was so worthwhile."

Anyone wishing to take part in courses in the future should contact St Ann's Safer Neighbourhood team by emailing stams.snt@met.police.uk or by calling 020 8721 2670.

Truly moving performances

By Lucy Purdy

JACKSONS Lane Theatre was buzzing with young people from Haringey and beyond this weekend when dance groups took over the stage for a contemporary dance performance.

As part of the Jam Free project, which aims to increase the amount of physical activity school pupils do, young people learned the basics of acrobalance and acrobatic dance during 11 workshop sessions run by choreographer Natasha Khamjani. Acrobalance is a form of dance characterised by lifting in different poses and positions.

The theatre, based in Archway Road, Highgate, hosted its own Jam Free crew on Sunday which consists of 15 girls aged between 11 and 16 from Hornsey School for Girls, Highgate Wood School and Fortismere School.

The group developed a piece called Journey, based on the idea of travelling through space in which they imagined an extra-terrestrial forest filled with magic, agile creatures and harmonious music. They put their choreography to a soundtrack of Glósóli by Icelandic band Sigur Rós.

Panni Kanyuk, project manager for Jam Free, said: "Through this project we want to engage teenage schoolgirls to get moving.

"Our special flavour of dance is acrobalance and acrobatic dance, forms of movement which represent an ideal cross between physical activity and dance.

"Together, the girls and their teachers have had fun, learned new skills and bounced ideas off each other to make up the piece.

"I very much hope that we've been able to encourage the girls to keep up with dance and acrobatics and we're excited to be bringing more creative learning projects to young people in north London."

Sadler's Wells youth dance groups Kinetic, Status and Srishti, as well as The Place's Shift, also performed alongside other dancers from Haringey schools on the day.

Stories and music in aid of Haitians

HAITIAN bands will perform in Wood Green on Saturday to raise funds to rebuild a school which was flattened in the recent devastating earthquake.

People who were in Haiti when the quake struck on January 12 will give eye-witness accounts of what happened and there will be a presentation about Hadepa School in Port-au-Prince, which was ruined in the disaster. All profits from the event at 7.30pm in St Michael's church hall, Bounds Green Road, will go toward restoring the school for its 400 pupils. There will also be refreshments and a raffle. Tickets cost £4.

Call 020 8340 9139 to find out more.

Stroke of luck for the non-swimmers

PEOPLE who have never learned to swim can take part in free courses on offer at three pools in Haringey.

Residents who are 16 or over can book a place on the six-week courses at Park Road, Northumberland Park and Tottenham Green swimming pools. They will then be encouraged to keep up the sport with additional lessons starting at £1 a class.

Councillor Dhiren Basu, cabinet member for leisure, culture and lifelong learning at Haringey Council, said: "Swimming is one of the best forms of exercise there is. So if you can't swim, get in touch and learn now."

RESTAURANT OF THE YEAR

By Jonathan Lovett
Arts Editor

Joy for Hunters of Cockfosters as it spears top award

HUNTERS OF Cockfosters has scored a hat-trick!

The popular, predominantly Mediterranean restaurant, is the proud winner of the Gannets' Restaurant Of The Year Award for a record third time in the competition.

No other restaurant in our area has won the award twice, let alone thrice, meaning Hunters, in Cockfosters Road, is now undisputed heavyweight champion of north London.

What's even more impressive is that the popular eatery only got into the final round by default – having just missed out in the final round of votes to Lavender Lady which has since closed – meaning Hunters was able to go forth to battle it out against Dipali in Palmers Green and The Jolly Farmers in Enfield for our judges' affections, who ended up being unanimous in their praise.

"My dad took the phone call when I was watching Sleepless In Seattle," said a thrilled manager, Louis Loizou. "And I still don't know whether Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan got together because we instantly started celebrating! It seemed like the fourth-placed horse won by a nose and we are so happy and would like to say a huge thank you to all our loyal customers who voted for us. Winning the award once is special but it's much harder to keep winning it again and again."

For the past decade the family-run business has been keeping north London happy with its expertly cooked international cuisine and friendly service and atmosphere.

In the past six months it has been boosted by the return of head chef Theodosios Savvas ('Sammy') who has relaunched the menu and brought in what Louis called his "addictive sauces."

Gannets' top choice: George Loizou, arts editor Jonathan Lovett, Maria Loizou, Louis Loizou and head chef Theodosios Savvas

In 2002 Hunters won the award for the first time, followed by another triumph in 2006, while coming runners-up in 2001 and 2005.

"We'll have to get some more shelf space for all the awards!" said Louis' father, George. "And it's such a relief because we do work very hard and the hours are tremendous. Like many restaurants we don't make much money but this has to be better than any profit."

film

Tender tale of pain

A Single Man (12A)

Dir: Tom Ford
Starring: Colin Firth, Julianne Moore, Nicholas Hoult

COLIN Firth is a revelation.

St Trinian's II: The Legend Of Fritton's Gold and endless Darcy-related projects have hardly been ideal showcases for the British actor to channel the depth of emotion that propelled him into the spotlight as a gauche 23-year-old in Another Country in the early 1980s.

But here he is as a slimmed-down, gay academic in the adaptation of Christopher Isherwood's novel, and he's a beguiling mass of subtle confusions, pained emotions and tender affections to make him a serious contender for Best Actor at next month's Academy Awards.

The other revelation is fashion designer Tom Ford who, in his feature film debut, has directed and co-written an exquisite paean to relationships – gay or straight – and those moments of connection that make life worth living.

Firth plays George, a middle-aged professor of English in Los Angeles circa 1962. Set over the course of a crisp November day, we gradually realise that George plans to kill himself.

Eight months after his long-term lover was killed in a car crash

Final fling: George (Colin Firth) and Charley (Julianne Moore)

George has failed to come to terms with his sudden death and meticulously plans the event – even laying out the clothes he is to be buried in.

He throws himself into a final lecture, and gets drunk with an old flame, Charley (Moore) at her most effervescent, but one of his pupils (Skins' Hoult) senses something is up with George and refuses to leave this mysterious closed book alone.

It's a simple plot, well told, but where Ford – like Isherwood – excels is in bringing this world to vivid life through complete mastery of mood. The bursts of colour to contrast the dull monochrome when George feels a connection with another; the perfect pacing and deft build-up to the end of his day; the use of flashbacks which is neither obtrusive nor overdone – make this a masterclass in control of the moving image.

But, more than exemplary technical skill, it's a passionate, moving response to its subject matter helped, in no small part, by the performance of Colin Firth.

Now Showing...

Astro Boy (PG)

Manga is brought to cinematic life, rather like the turbo-charged titular hero who is rebuilt from the DNA of genius child Toby. Lacking the innovation of the great animations, it's still enjoyable half-term fare.

Precious: Based on the Novel "Push" by Sapphire (15)

Extraordinary slice of life picked snarling and scrapping from the streets of 1987 Harlem. Obese Claireece "Precious" Jones endures humiliations and abuse before finding acceptance in an alternative school offering hope.

A Prophet (18)

Goodfellas duffs up The Shawshank Redemption in this violent French tale of one man's rise to the top in the clink. One of the best prison dramas and a taut thriller ensures the two and a half hours skid past.

Sex & Drugs & Rock and Roll (15)

Many reasons to be cheerful with yet another four-star. The life and rhymes of rock's most passionate polio poet is colourfully recorded in this dynamic homage featuring a pulsating performance from Andy Serkis as main man Ian Dury.

what's on

Snap-happy view of French city life

PHILIPPE BARBOUR is not someone you want to invite round to pore over their holiday snaps.

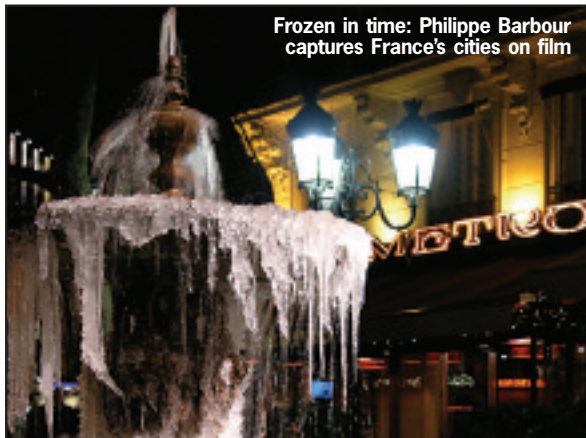

"I've got about 50,000 images of France," he said, laughing. "For the past 15 years I've been writing rough guides to the country and on the side I've also been busy with taking photos."

Specifically, these photos have been of the French cities which Philippe has loved spending his time in.

"One of the sections of my exhibition is devoted to Paris, freeing up the rest for aspects of various cities which people might not know that well," he explained.

"The French have amazingly vibrant cities which are forward-looking, with authorities spending a lot of money on culture and environmental initiatives. They have a profound interest in culture and outside living and consequently they make their city a kind of salon with beautiful architecture."

Philippe has chosen some of the 50,000 to form his exhibition running from next Tuesday to February 28 in Lauderdale House's Upper Gallery and Entrance Hall.

Frozen in time: Philippe Barbour captures France's cities on film

Many cities feature but which one would be Philippe's favourite?

"It may come as a bit of a surprise, because of its bad boy image, but I love Marseilles," he said. "It's the place I go to relax and love standing on the balcony and looking at the view of the Chateau D'Iff where The Count Of Monte Cristo is set."

It also promises to make you smile... "There are some humorous touches such as the characters in the Montpellier gay pride and one of an heroic statue over a woman wiping a dog's bottom!"

● Capital France: Photos Of French Cities can be seen at Lauderdale House in Highgate Hill, Highgate. Admission is free.

For opening times call the house on 020 8348 8716.

Out and about

● BOSSY, Plumpy, Chavey, Smelly, Lofty, Dozy and Numpty will be whistling while they work in Palmers Green next week. Known by their group name of the Seven Dwarfs they will be hanging out with Snow White at the Intimate Theatre in Green Lanes, from next Thursday to Saturday. Protos Theatre and Arts Group performs the panto until Saturday. For ticket details and times call the box office on 020 8883 6292.

● A "FANTASMAGORIC feast" of classy clowning, perk puppets and silly songs is on display at Lauderdale House this Saturday. Rubberface The Clown performs Houmah-jalalah at the venue in Highgate Hill, Highgate, at 10am and 11.30am. Tickets cost £4.50 for adults and children (£3 concs) and it's suitable for ages three to eight. For more details call the box office on 020 8348 8716.

● THE Kalamazoo Klub is open for business again in Crouch End this Friday. Martin Simpson, folk musician and veteran of numerous albums, is the star attraction for an acoustic session, Downstairs at the King's Head in Crouch End Hill. It starts at 8.30pm and tickets cost £12. For more details call the box office on 020 8340 1028.

See what our customers say about us...

Hi Sarah,

Since your papers have such a great penetration into the market, we have had an immense response to the adverts placed.

It would be enough for us to just keep it in for one week - please do not continue the advert over to a second week!

We will surely be using your medium for future advertisements for promoting our moving services as well as other recruitment adverts.

Best regards,

Adnan Shaikh, Director, Sales & Marketing

KING EYES A TOP FOUR SPOT

Captain marvel: King believes this year could finally see Spurs crack the top four

Ledley confident Spurs have the edge in Champions League race

By Lee Husson

TOTTENHAM skipper Ledley King remains confident that Spurs can still qualify for the Champions League this season, despite losing their grip on fourth place in the Premier League table after being overhauled by Liverpool at the weekend.

Harry Redknapp's men could not find a way past a resolute Aston Villa side – also vying for that all-important fourth-placed finish – despite heavy late pressure at White Hart Lane on Saturday.

Coupled with Liverpool's Merseyside derby win over Everton, Spurs now find themselves outside the top four, but King believes the strength of the squad gives them the edge in the fight for fourth.

"I think we've got a strong squad," he said. "You've seen the likes of David Bentley and Gareth Bale coming in and they're playing great. They have added to the team, and that's the beauty of having the kind of squad we've got."

"We believe we can still do it. It's going to go down to the wire, but the best team will get fourth spot."

He added: "For the past few years I've felt the club's always been going in the right direction, and finally we've got a manager who hopefully can do that for us."

"The Champions League is something I sit down and watch and look forward to. I probably would have liked to have played it a bit earlier in my career, but that's the way it goes."

"Any footballer, playing at club level, aspires to play in the Champions League against the best players around. That's what you strive to do. You go into training every day and work hard to test yourself against the best."

Meanwhile, Redknapp expects there to be plenty more twists in the race for Champions League qualification between now and the end of the season.

"Obviously it was a big result for Liverpool. It's their weekend this week, it will be somebody else's next week and somebody else's the week after," he said.

"It's going to go all the way to the wire."

Second half fightback stuns Langford

Langford 3 Haringey Borough 3

Molten Spartan Premier Division

LLOYD OPARA scored twice as Haringey Borough produced a superb second-half comeback to claim a creditable draw from Saturday's trip to Langford in the Spartan Premier Division.

Playing in the league for just the second time in 2010, Borough looked set to be heading for defeat when they trailed 3-1 at the interval, but the visitors produced such a good response that they ended the match disappointed not to have secured all three points.

Joe Delasalle fired the hosts into the lead after just four minutes with a speculative cross-shot which crept under Borough keeper Brian Sealey's dive, but recently signed Adam Scotcher levelled the scores with a fine strike soon after.

Borough's hopes of getting anything out of the match appeared to have been ended when Ben L'Honore and Delasalle both found the net in the space of three minutes shortly before the end of the half.

The visitors were a different team after the interval, however, and Opara pulled a goal back from the spot on 57 minutes after Scotcher had been tripped in the box.

Opara completed the comeback by netting with a powerful header 15 minutes later, and Borough looked by far the more likely winners in the closing stages – with Bosun Adebaki and Charles Douse both having good chances to seal victory.

Sorry Skolars are crushed again

London Skolars 12 Hunslet Hawks 60

Northern Rail Cup

THE new-look London Skolars endured another chastening experience on Sunday as their first home match of the season ended in a crushing defeat at the hands of Hunslet Hawks in the National Rail Cup.

The Skolars had already suffered comprehensive losses in their opening two matches of the campaign, and they fared little better in their first outing at New River Stadium under the stewardship of head coach James Massara.

An experienced Hunslet team took control from the start, running in five tries inside the first 30 minutes as they opened up a 26-0 lead.

The Skolars rarely got the ball in the first half, but they did not help themselves by conceding a number of penalties when they did manage to get possession.

A break from Josh Welsh enabled Matt Thomas to get them on the scoreboard with a try before the interval, but this proved to be a brief respite as Hunslet continued to pile on the points.

Wayne McHugh led the way by grabbing four of the visitors' ten tries, and Aran Quinn's late score under the posts proved to be little consolation for the Skolars.
